

My personal experience with the Duke Of Edinburgh Award has been a fulfilling one in many ways. I have completed the Bronze award and am nearing the completion of the Silver as well. These awards have helped me obtain multiple part-time jobs throughout the previous years, by allowing me to obtain key skills that have reflected well both within job interviews and also as a key part of my sixth form and university applications. The skills I have obtained have built my character and confidence, facilitating my future career pathway in which I am aspiring to join the Police Force, and I am confident that this award will greatly help me in not only my applications and interviews but also my experience within the police due to the type of skills i have developed throughout the completion of these awards. Such skills will not just help in my early life and career but will be present throughout my life on a daily basis.

Here are some photos from last years DofE cohort completing their expedition:
